With bromelain, pineapple stem, and Centella asiatica, beneficial for supporting the drainage of body fluids (in cases of heavy legs), microcirculation functionality, and reducing the appearance of cellulite.

What is cellulite? Panniculopathy edematous-fibro-sclerotic, also known as cellulite, is a condition affecting subcutaneous tissue. In its most common form, it primarily affects the thighs, buttocks, and abdomen, causing imperfections with the typical "orange peel" appearance of the skin. Other symptoms include swelling, restricted movement, and increased sensitivity in the affected areas. Effectively combating the inflammatory state can be a key resource in addressing the symptoms of cellulite.

How does it work? Bromelain improves overall microcirculation functionality through its anti-inflammatory, anti-edematous, and fibrinolytic actions. The anti-inflammatory effect is achieved by reducing cytokine release, which consequently diminishes associated phenomena. Together with pineapple extract, bromelain reduces inflammation and promotes the drainage of body fluids, enhancing microcirculation functionality. Centella asiatica contains numerous biologically active molecules that can contribute to bromelain's activity. It has the ability to stimulate collagen synthesis, helping to protect, repair, and rejuvenate the skin, making it more even and elastic. Vitamin C is an antioxidant capable of combating free radicals. It is dosed at the correct level to ensure its efficacy and safe use.

Warnings: Do not exceed the recommended daily dose. Keep out of reach of children under three years of age.
